iPhone 15 Series colours

What colours does the iPhone 15 come in?

Apple has designed different colours for the regular iPhone and the Pro-branded iPhone. This also means that there is a distinction between the consumer groups that the different versions are aimed at.

This time, Apple will choose fresh and youthful colours for the regular iPhone, which are more youthful and energetic, and these colours will probably be the next trend colours;

This kind of customer group likes to express themselves individually, and pursues the elements of popular fashion trends.

The colours of the Pro version of the iPhone are more serious and deeper, slightly darker and less vibrant. The Pro version is more serious and deeper in colour, a little darker and less vibrant. It is more suitable for people who are calm and petty.

This kind of people in the choice of mobile phone case is also mostly for the basic models, classic style!

Yellow

iPhone 15 & iPhone 15 Plus

The yellow version of the iPhone 15 and iPhone 15 Plus is less saturated than what we've seen from yellow iPhones in previous years. The colour is subdued but still looks polished and premium with a touch of youthful-ness to it.

Green

iPhone 15 & iPhone 15 Plus

Another new and interesting colour for the iPhone 15 and iPhone 15 Plus is green.

The colour option is again a fresh and youthful colour, not too saturated or vibrant. It looks sophisticated and quite polished, and won't stand out as much as would a bright green colour option. A matching frame and Apple logo complete the look.

Pink

iPhone 15 & iPhone 15 Plus

Earlier this year, we've been hearing rumors about a light pink variant for the iPhone 15 and iPhone 15 Plus. And this has come to fruition, luckily for those of you who were excited about it.

Again it's quite subdued as a colour (nothing too vibrant or crazy about how Apple does pink), and it's quite light. It's premium all right, and you shouldn't have any concerns about fingerprint smudges given how light it is. However, it doesn't lack a punch in its looks.

Blue

iPhone 15 & iPhone 15 Plus

This year is the year of light iPhone 15 colours. Another great option if you're going for a lighter iPhone is Blue. The colour looks subdued but quite elegant and blends very nicely with the Apple logo and the frame of the phone, which is painted in a matching hue.

The shade isn't completely new for Apple, we've seen similar light blue shades from the company in previous years. However, that doesn't stop it from being gorgeous and fresh.

Black Titanium

iPhone 15 Pro and Pro Max

The iPhone 15 Pro also comes in Black Titanium, which is a dark titanium variant of Graphite. Honestly, the colour looks very similar to Graphite, to put it briefly, it's a dark grey (not quite black) shade. It's a look that's also standard for Apple.

The Black Titanium is ideal for people who want their iPhone to look ready for business, and people who generally dislike too much colour on their phones. Despite it being quite a familiar shade, it looks polished and premium nonetheless.

Blue Titanium

iPhone 15 Pro and Pro Max

It's a pretty straightforward shade, looking quite polished, premium, and serious. It will be ideal for those of you who may be sick from the dark gray/black phones but still want your iPhone to look professional and business-like.

The White Titanium iPhone 15 Pro and Pro Max will be ideal if you want your phone to look professional, but still with a touch of colour to it and you don't want too dark of a colour.

Natural Titanium

iPhone 15 Pro and Pro Max

Another shade that we've been used to from previous iPhones is getting replaced this year. What we're talking about is Gold, and this year, instead of Gold, we're getting Natural Titanium, which highlights the natural look of the Titanium that the iPhone 15 Pro's frame is made of.

This is a sophisticated dark gray colour, quite darker than silver but lighter than Space Black or Graphite.
